

Glossing Over Trouble

I think it is fair to say that few problems are cured by being glossed over.

Unless we admit to there being a problem, the problem only goes away temporarily. Sooner or later it will re-surface, usually worse than it was before. It's usually a good idea to discuss any differences we have, before they become mega problems.

The first step towards reconciliation is always the hardest.

