

Danger! Red Alert!

It's dangerous. It always has been dangerous to handle God's word; so vital that it brings out the best, and the worst, in people. Nothing was more dangerous, in the aftermath of the crucifixion, than for the disciples to start preaching about Jesus anywhere near Jerusalem. But Jesus had told them to preach, and they preached.

If it was made an criminal offence to be a Christian in England today, how many of us might remain free for lack of evidence. But do we need to wait for persecution? No, let us keep busy by stepping up our work and witness, when it's convenient, and at the most inconvenient times as well.